A message from your local Police

Do you remember our Candy Cane or Pink Shirt school visits we did last year? The positive impact between police, students and teachers is a model we would like to build on in the 2017-18 school year. Often youth's only contact with the police is related to an incident or organized event and we want to change that by building healthy relationships throughout the whole school year by impromptu visits at the schools as part of our regular police business.

What this means is police would attend schools, check in with the administrators and spend some time at recess, lunch, or during assemblies or sports events to just be present as part of this school community. If you see a police car parked out front or uniformed members in the hallways we're not always attending to a crime, we just might be stopping by to say hi!
